

OneChronos – Technical Program Manager (London)

Overview and Job Description

OneChronos is seeking an experienced Technical Program Manager (TPM) to define, lead, and drive the execution of high-performance trading systems that power our periodic auction matching infrastructure. This role sits at the intersection of complex systems engineering, mechanism design, and financial markets, requiring an understanding of low-latency, high-throughput distributed computing challenges.

The ideal candidate has a strong technical background, a proven track record of managing complex engineering programs in a real-time, performance-sensitive environment, and thrives in a collaborative, research-driven setting.

The TPM is responsible for:

- Partnering with engineering to define the project scope and leading project execution.
- Coordinating delivery with all involved cross-functional teams.
- Tracking project progress and key performance indicators.
- Providing clear visibility and progress updates to leadership and stakeholders.
